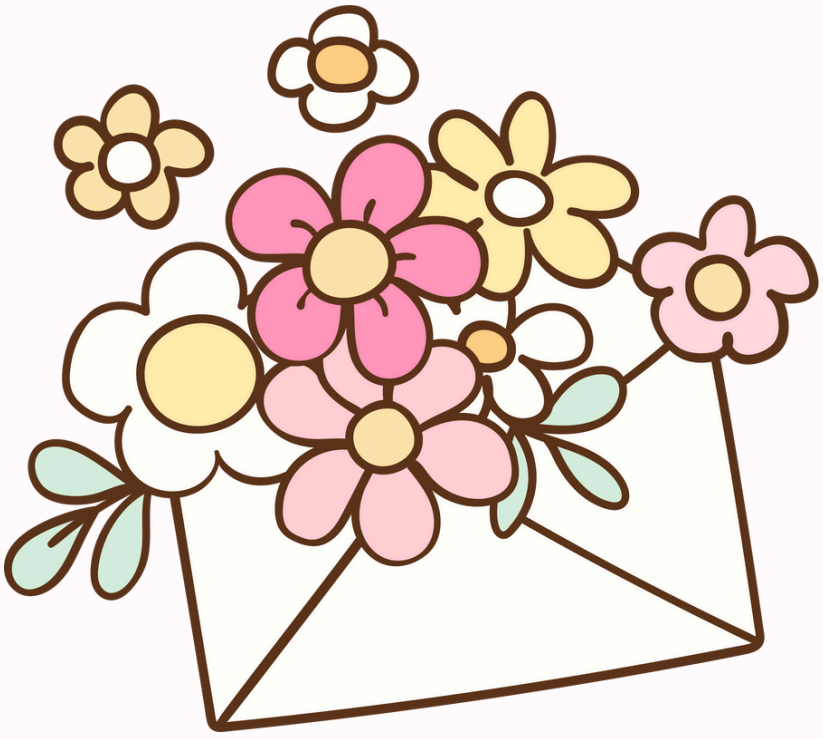
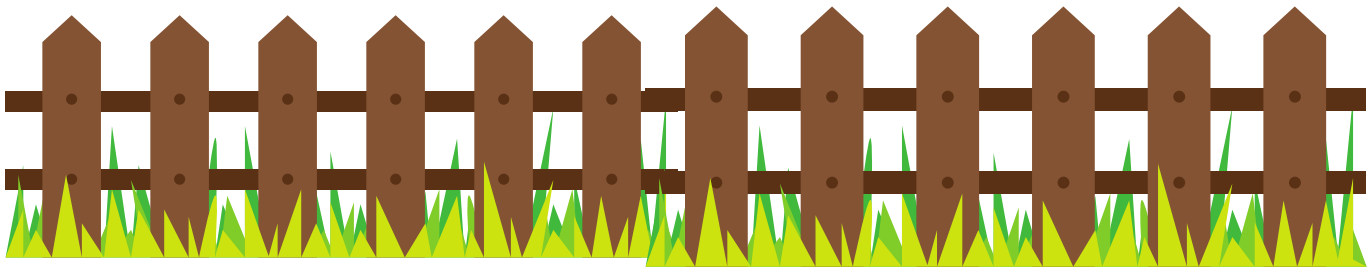
Spring Writing Prompts



Imagine you wake up to find that flowers can talk! Write a story about what they say and what you do.

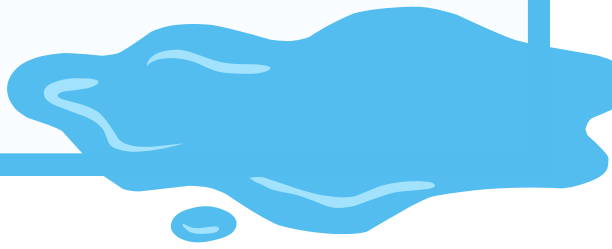
You find a tiny egg in your yard. When it hatches, something unexpected comes out! Write a story about your discovery.



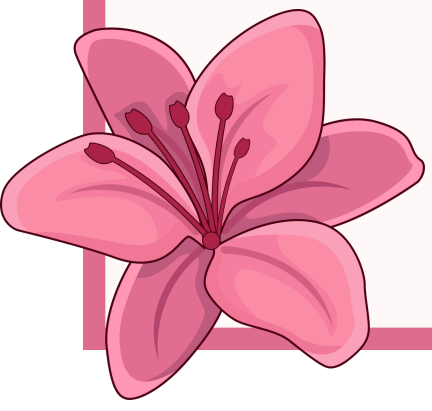
You plant a mysterious seed in your garden. The next morning, something magical has grown. What is it? Why is it unusual?

Write about a butterfly's journey through a blooming garden. What does it see, hear, and feel?

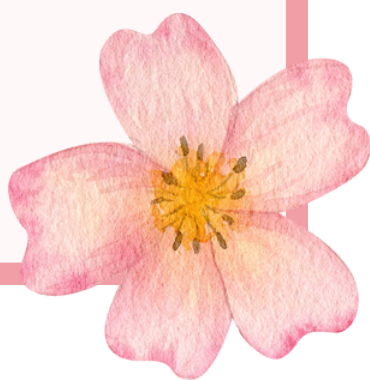
Imagine you are a raindrop falling from the sky during a spring storm. Describe your adventure.



Describe a field of wildflowers in full bloom. What colors, smells, and sounds do you notice?

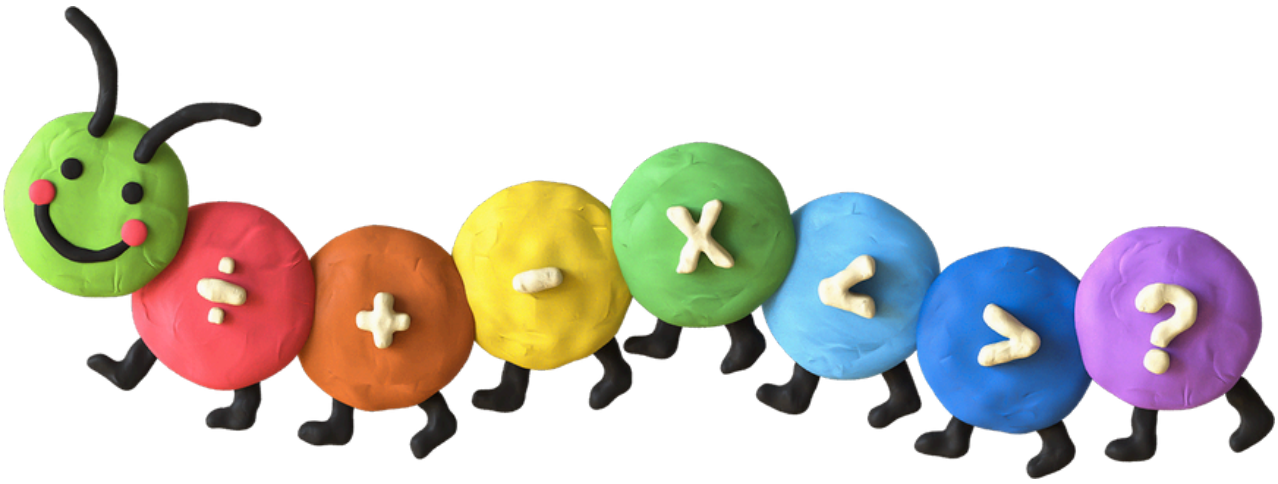


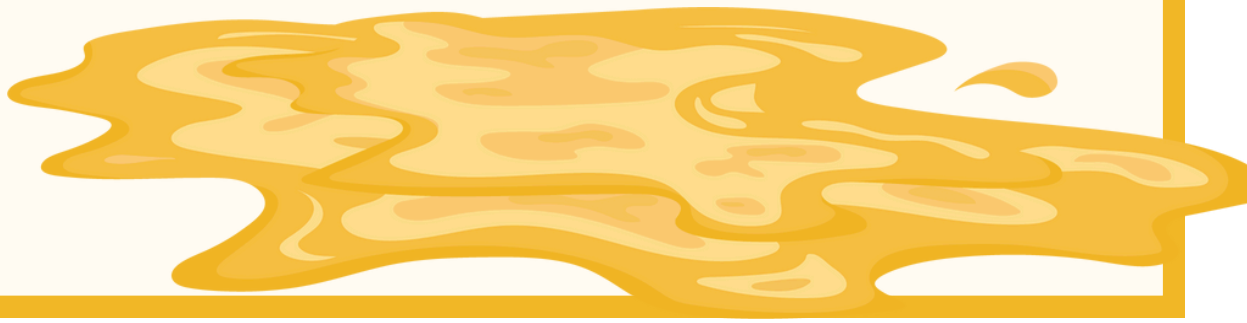
Convince your parents to let you start a spring garden. What would you grow, and why?



Some people don't like spring showers. Write an argument for why rainy days can be fun.

Write a poem about how a caterpillar feels when it turns into a butterfly.



Imagine you are a tree waking up after a long winter. Write a short poem about your experience.


Write a fun, rhyming poem about jumping in puddles after a spring rain.